MacID Terms of Use

It's important that you read the MacID Terms of Use before downloading and using MacID, because MacID is technology that allows access to a Mac via a Bluetooth connection from an iOS device.

By downloading MacID you are confirming that you agree to be bound by these Terms of Use. You are encouraged to check for changes to this document, where any changes will be published to the MacID website.

Definitions

"MacID" refers to the services and functionality provided by MacID for iOS, MacID for OS X, the MacID website and may also refer to the creator or creators and affiliates of MacID.

"We", "us", or "our" refers to the creator or creators of MacID.

"You" refers to the user of the software, who is agreement of this document by the use of MacID.

"Data" refers to digital information stored on Mac or iOS devices.

"Terms" refers to the MacID Terms of Use

(1) Disclaimer of Warranties

MacID is intended to make life harder for criminals by encouraging the use of password protected Macs. With this in mind, we do not guarantee or make any warranty that MacID will protect your Mac or the data on your Mac. We disclaim all warranties of any kind, whether express or implied, including without limitation any warranty of merchantability, fitness for a particular purpose, or non-infringement

By using MacID you agree to do so entirely at your own discretion and risk.

(2) Limitations of Liability

Under absolutely no circumstances – including, without limitation, negligence – will we be liable for any direct, indirect, incidental, special or consequential damages, including loss or theft of your iOS device, your Mac, or your Mac's data, resulting from the use of or the inability to use MacID.

MacID is not intended to replace your Mac's password.

You understand that MacID has no affiliation with Apple beyond the iOS App Store and its respective policies, and that Apple does not approve of and may in fact disapprove of MacID as a method of authenticating with your Mac. We're not saying they disapprove of it, but just that we make no claims to the contrary.

(3) Software Licence Agreement

Whether you purchase MacID or you obtain MacID for free during a promotional period, you are not buying the software, you are buying a license to use the software we own.

The license we grant you when you purchase MacID entitles you to a personal, limited, non-exclusive, non-transferable use of MacID, which is in accordance with the terms laid out in MacID Terms of Use.

You are not permitted to sublicense MacID nor tamper with the way in which it operates, or the code upon which MacID is built or the binary that MacID is compiled to.

We reserve the right to charge or not charge for further updates to MaclD or change the terms of this license at any time.

(4) Indemnification

By using MaclD you agree to indemnify, defend and hold harmless us and anyone affiliated with MaclD for any and all claims and expenses, including any fees arising out of your use of any service which MaclD offers you, including that of the MaclD website.

We may, at our sole discretion, assume the exclusive defence and control of any matter subject to indemnification by you. The assumption of such defence or control by us, however, shall not excuse any of your indemnity obligations.

(5) Dispute Resolution

You agree to contact us directly about any disputes you may have with us or the use of MaclD where we will attempt to resolve the dispute. For disputes that cannot be settled directly between us and you, you agree to arbitrate all disputes that you may have with us.

By using MaclD you waive your right to bring a lawsuit against us or anyone we are affiliated with in court, and you waive your right to participate in a Class Action against us.

If any provision of this arbitration agreement is found unenforceable, the unenforceable provision shall be severed, and the remaining arbitration terms shall be enforced (but in no case shall there be a class arbitration).

Arbitrations will, where possible, take place a reasonable distance between both parties.
